

The Morning Show

Interview by Schofield and Willoughby

Phillip and Holly interview Simon who is still in office as a Labour Councillor. They talk about his first encounter with a Mantid as a very small child in his crib. The names Mommy and Daddy are discussed in terms of his biological family and his Mantid family. They talk about the first time (about 1963) Simon was taken up into a craft away from earth. They discuss a holographic sexual encounter that he had as a small child with an alien. They then discuss a “non-holographic” sexual encounter that he had later on with a lion lady. Aliens can enter your mind and make you think and feel things that you don’t think and feel. The Beings that Simon has had encounters with have followed his soul through generations. They check up on him periodically to be sure that he is in good health. There were some issues with one or two individuals politically. Simon thinks these people should concentrate on the true political issues and people in parliament who defraud the people rather than his personal and private life. If people are concerned, they should ask his colleagues about him. When he is taken off planet it does not affect his job as a councillor. The beings do not want attention drawn to them so they would not do anything to cause this to happen.

Phillip Schofield: Now then it was the end of an era for the so-called British X Files last week as the Ministry of Defence shut down its UFO desk after sixty years of operation. The conclusion of their investigations is that aliens probably don't exist.

Holly Willoughby: But one man who definitely believes in aliens is Labour Councillor Simon Parkes. What's more, he claims he's having an affair with one and after the story hit the headlines, he is now facing calls to quit.

PS: Well, he joins us now and we'll come to all of those calls in a moment after we have heard some of the story, which is remarkable, extraordinary, and starts before you were even born.

Simon Parkes: Well, first of all, can I say how pleased I am that you have invited me to your show, it's delightful to be here, live and on air. Yes, indeed, my first memories are very, very early.

PS: So, in the womb?

SP: Yes.

PS: Very few people that I have ever met can remember that far back. So how come you can remember what was happening in the womb?

SP: You are absolutely right. Most people can't remember. For some reason I have a very good memory. I can't answer your question as to why I know, just that I do have a good memory. I have a very clear memory of a face, just a face, no real distinct features, and then suddenly being aware that there was much more to this world than I knew. There is a far wider, spiritual experience, and then it just closed down and that is all I remember.

HW: And your first time you came face to face with an alien was when you were about six to eight months?

SP: No. I would come face to face with such a creature much earlier. The one you are referring to, I think, is a little bit later.

HW: Okay, so when was the first one then?

SP: About three or four months old.

HW: And what does this alien look like? Because obviously we have images in our minds of the ones that we see in movies, that sort of image. What did your alien look like?

SP: You are absolutely right. Hollywood is very good at putting out little creatures that people know as greys. This one, researchers call a mantid, or in America it is referred to as a mantis. It's a green creature, it's about seven [feet] foot tall, and this one wore a robe or a cloak, purple coloured. That is one of my drawings here. And the creature literally reached into the cot that I was in. I remember it distinctly, it had wooden bars, green, yellow, red, blue, like a painted abacus on the top. And this creature just reached and lifted me up and then I was literally tilted over to look straight into its face.

PS: So, these are experiences, you don't use the word abduction, but you use the word contact, because you are a willing subject, a willing participant. So, from the moment there when you were obviously very young and you were meeting them in their various guises; when was the first time that you believed that you had contact outside of your living environment? I want to say the word abducted, but when were you taken, where did you go?

SP: That's a very incisive question. That's a very good question. In those early days, I wouldn't know they were aliens, to me they were just beings that came to visit me. They were not distinguishable from my real family. Because these things have never hurt me, I never built up any sort of scaremongering or fear of them. I think from about 1963, that was my first experience of being taken off the earth into a craft.

PS: Can you remember what that looked like?

SP: Oh absolutely. It was not a traditional Hollywood type flying saucer, it was a tear drop shaped craft. If you can imagine a tear drop, a water drop, but with the blunt end going forward and the pointy end at the back.

HW: Wow. And one of the aliens wanted to be your mother, or said that she was your mother. That must have been quite confusing. How old would you have been then?

SP: Very young.

HW: Very young, so that is what I mean, it's quite a difficult thing to comprehend, and you had your human mother and that did lead to a bit of confusion there for you, didn't it? In fact, you called your human mother "daddy" for a while because you couldn't work out why you had...

SP: Well, why would I need two mothers? Exactly. I already had a mother so this person can't be my mother, it must be my daddy. And then as you get older you realise that certain things are not acceptable in human society so I stopped saying "daddy" and "mummy" and got the words right and learnt not to be open, not to discuss it; because outside of the very close family, most people can't handle it.

PS: So, this progressed through your childhood and quite early on, you lost your virginity to one of these aliens who, now this is quite a confused part of the story here, because from what I read, the aliens turned themselves into the woman from the Fry's Turkish Delight advert...

SP: (laughing) This is holographic, so I wouldn't have actually lost my virginity. This is a holographic image. We think we have some wonderful technology here on this earth, but the technology that I have seen far surpasses anything that we have here, or at least, anything that the military tell us they have. This was a holographic experience.

PS: How old were you?

SP: That would be about 1965. I would be about five or six.

PS: You lost your virginity at six years old?

SP: No, I didn't say that, it was a holographic representation.

PS: So, you had a sexual encounter with...

SP: Exactly. Holographically, absolutely.

PS: So, age doesn't matter to them?

SP: No, because it's about experience, it's about your soul. I know in the west we don't really understand souls, but in the east and in the Bible, they actually understand souls very clearly.

HW: You went on to have non-holographic sex with an alien called a lion lady. Although you weren't attracted to her, because that wasn't really what it was about, it wasn't like what we have here where, for the majority of people, there has to be an attraction.

SP: This is an incredibly difficult subject for most people to understand. I fully appreciate that most people can't get their head around it. We are talking about creatures that have the ability to enter your mind, to go into your mind and give you images and to make you think one thing, when actually you think another. So, I think these creatures would have come into my mind and made me appear to love them, because otherwise you wouldn't actually have a sexual reaction with anybody unless you felt something for them. So, I think it is more to do with that than anything else.

HW: Does that not bother you? I'd be quite upset if somebody came into my mind and convinced me that I fancied them.

SP: Yeah, the thing is I have seen these creatures ever since I was very young, from a very early age. When you realise that humanity is not the only thing in this galaxy, in this whole universe. [6:43-6:48: exchange between Holly and Simon difficult to completely understand] When you get used to these creatures and you realise that mankind is literally just a pin prick in a massive constellation some things become less important.

PS: I can get my head round that, in the great vastness of the universe - I always thought it was hugely arrogant to assume that we might be the only ones that were here, but why did they pick you? What is their agenda? Do they plan eventually to take over?

SP: That is a question that I have asked them. And I have always made clear in all of the presentations that I've done that I don't consider myself special, I don't consider myself important at all. The best way to answer it would be to give the answer they gave, and they said that earth scientists trap a wild animal, put a tag on it, follow it when it has cubs they will put tags on those cubs and they will follow those wild animals for twenty, thirty years generation after generation. In the same way, these creatures follow generational lines of humans right back from Egyptian times, Babylonian times, Sumerian times.

PS: So, they followed your soul through the generations?

SP: Correct. And just to answer the other question that you said, no. Because if they wanted to take over the earth in the traditional Hollywood style, they would have done it in the Stone age, when all we would have had would be bows and arrows.

PS: When was the last time you had an encounter and what was it?

SP: It would have been about six weeks ago and that would have been just a general encounter for a health check.

PS: They checked your health?

SP: Absolutely.

PS: And are you in good health?

SP: Yes.

PS: In alien health...

SP: I'm fifty-three years of age.

PS: I thought you were going to say you were five hundred and fifty-three years old.

SP: I tell you what, if I were, I would start marketing some wonderful medicine.

PS: But when you say this is taking you, the Labour councillor from Whitby, did they have some sort of grand plan for you? Did they think, Oh my God, this guy is going to be Prime Minister?

SP: No. When they picked me, as you call it, I wasn't a Labour councillor; I was a very small child.

PS: But they would have known what you were going to become, they can see into the future?

Simon: I think so. Ladies first.

HW: Did you realise when you came out and finally spoke about all this - because you said earlier on that within your family you were told not to talk about this outside the confines of the family because people don't understand. Obviously, you've come out and you've said it and it's gone very public and we are talking about it now and people have said "we don't want him as our councillor any more". How do you feel about that?

SP: Okay, well that's old news, that's old hat. Because when I first went public about three years ago, the same angry people who sit on their armchairs and get very angry, I'm sure it's the same people made the comment. All I would say to them is, vent your angry spleen on those members of parliament who stole money, who defrauded the country. One of those members of parliament who got other people to take their penalty points for them, one of those great tycoon bankers who nearly destroyed this country.

I haven't broken any law. When I was elected, I'd already gone public, so the people already knew and it came up six times on the doorstep, four occasions it was positive, one occasion it was negative and on the last occasion the gentleman concerned didn't give a damn as long as his wheelie bin was emptied before ten o'clock on a Tuesday.

What people want is somebody to fight and defend the community of Whitby. I did hear that Mr Portillo had made a comment about me and I won't take any lectures from Mr Portillo. My policies are very strong, very clear and as a fellow politician, although from a different party, he would be better attacking my policies and not what is a personal issue. Just to finally finish off, nobody has asked me to resign because this is a private matter.

PS: And you can do your job as a councillor to the best of your ability because you are there all the time? What happens when you are taken away for a medical? Who is doing the job then?

SP: Very good question. The best thing I can say to people is speak to the chief officer. Speak to my colleagues of the same party, or the other party, and see what they say about me.

PS: Do you disappear when you go for.....

SP: You can be taken physically, and I have actually been taken with other people as well, so they know.

PS: And do your family wonder where you are?

SP: Close family often wonder where I am. Just to finish off the question, I am not taken during meetings, which is very thankful, because I would think there would be quite a lot of consternation. These creatures do not want attention drawn to themselves, the last thing they would do is visit or take during a large gathering of people.

PS: What do they feel about you talking out now about them?

SP: Clearly, they don't have an agenda either way because I would have been stopped if they were against it.

PS: Fascinating. Thank you very much.

HW: Very Interesting. Thank you. Thank you.
