

A Call to Meditation

Recorded Friday, November 1, 2019

Request for Meditation on Saturday November 2, 2019, at 10 pm GMT, to benefit fires in California and Australia.

Simon Parkes: Hello and welcome to a very quick update from me and under the banner of Connecting Consciousness. This is going to be about a five or just ten minute update, and then later we're going to do a proper podcast with a full hour, and hopefully that will go out, as usual, Sunday. But I needed this very urgent one, because the fires, that have been burning in California have become resurgent, and secondly, for no apparent reason, fires have started in Australia. Indeed the Australian coordinator [cough] – excuse me – Joanne, she's now without power. The power utility companies have turned the power off to her, because she's about a mile or so from the fires, but we do understand, that fire crews are actually in that location. So we've literally, over the last sort of 36 hours, had reports of these indiscriminate fires in Australia just starting up. No one seems to know what's caused them, and we've had this increase in the fires in California.

Now, I do appreciate that, you know, California – I'm often asking for, you know, for your thoughts and prayers for California, and I don't want us to become sort of jaded or tired or a bit, you know, worn out by it. It's always California, it's never Oregon, is it? It's never, you know, Washington necessarily. So the important thing is, that California is a member of the states. It's important. It's being targeted, and you know, I'm not asking you to send money to California, I'm asking you to send love, prayers, you know, anything and anything that can help.

Now, when we did the meditation for the fires in the Amazon rainforest, about three members of Connecting Consciousness, who lived in the area, all independently reported a reduction. And you know, we've got to do everything we can. So what I'd like, please, is a global meditation, Saturday, that's this Saturday, at 10:00 p.m. Greenwich Mean Time, both for California and for Australia.

Now, 10:00 p.m. Greenwich Mean Time on Saturday will mean early morning for Australia, six o'clock, seven o'clock, eight o'clock in the morning, so that's doable. Ten o'clock Greenwich Mean Time for Britain will be the early afternoon in the United States, which is doable, because, you know, it's Saturday.

So please spend just two to three minutes meditating, giving your prayers, sending healing energy, both to Australia and to California, and we can do this, because it's the same issue, it's fires. And that's my call out today. It's very important.

The coordinators in Australia are Jo-Anne, Hillary, who's Northern Territories, and Kate, who's in South Wales, New South Wales, and that's the team, the coordinating team for Australia, and they will be in touch with you guys in Australia as soon as they can, but bear in mind, that Jo-Anne has now been cut off from internet and the power, because she's so close to the fires.

Right, so please let's get on with that. 10:00 p.m. GMT Saturday. Thank you. All right, speak to you soon.
